

WHITE FRIDAY · 27 NOVEMBER

18 days left.
Fix the catalog first.

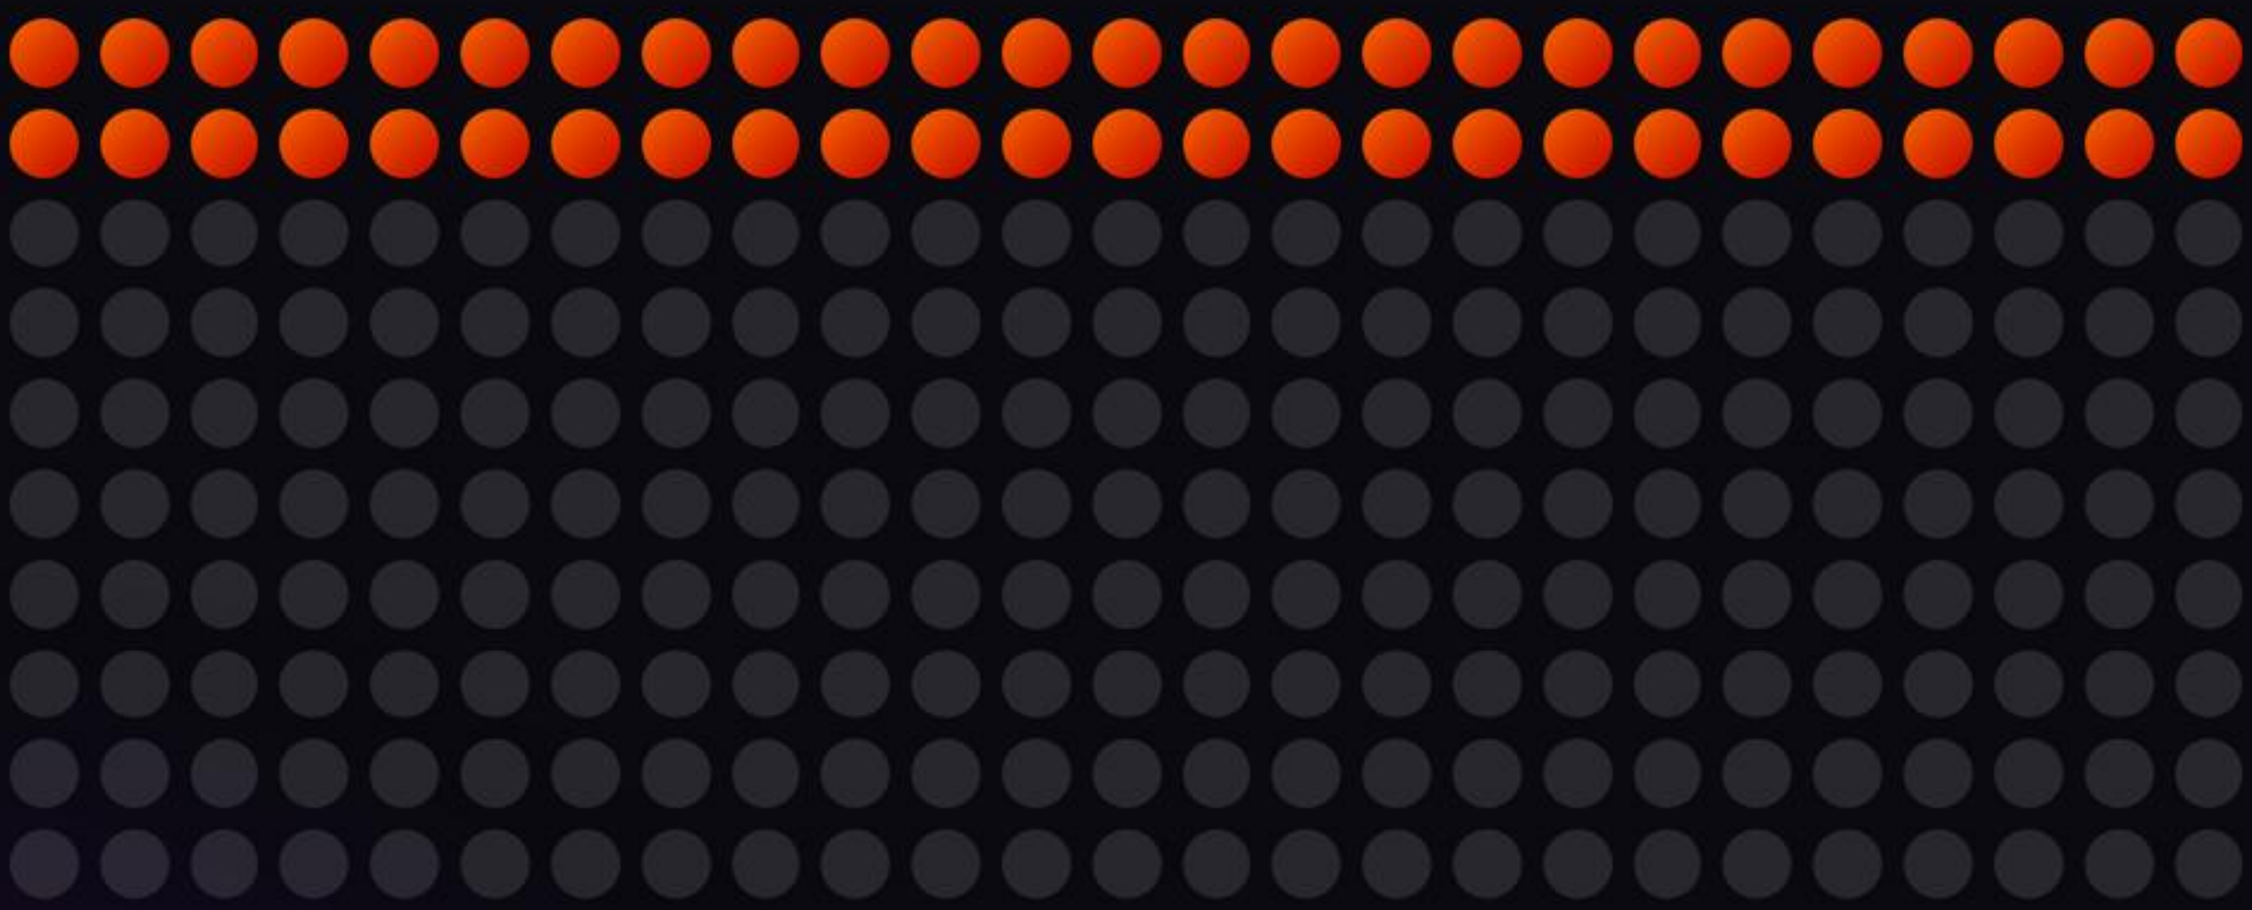

The 7-point checklist I would run this week, before a single ad goes live.

CHECK 01 / 07

Start with your top 50.

You can't fix 5,000 products in 18 days. You can fix the 50 that will carry the weekend: last year's bestsellers and everything in this year's deals.

50 PRODUCTS TO FIX FIRST

ILLUSTRATIVE CATALOG

DO THIS TODAY

Export last year's top sellers and this year's deal list. Merge them. That's your list.

CHECK 02 / 07

Titles that name the exact product.

Shoppers and AI assistants search by brand and model. Your internal code means nothing to them.

AFTER

New Balance Fresh Foam X 1080v13, Grey, EU 43

DO THIS TODAY

Rewrite each title as brand, model, product type, colour and size.

CHECK 03 / 07

Descriptions that answer questions.

Size, material, what's in the box, what it works with. If your page doesn't answer it, the shopper leaves for a page that does.

of shoppers would abandon a product page that lacks the information they want.

DO THIS TODAY

Read your top 10 pages as a first-time buyer. Write down every question left open.

When a shopper picks grey and still sees the black photo, you haven't made a sale. You've booked a return.

26%

of shoppers returned a product because the content set the wrong expectations.

DO THIS TODAY

Click every colour and size option on your top 50. Each one should change the photo.

CHECK 05 / 07

Specs as text, not pictures.

AI assistants quote pages that explain: specs, FAQs, guides. A spec sheet baked into an image is invisible to them.

63%

is the average citation readability score of a US retail homepage. Over a third is invisible to AI.

SOURCE: ADOBE, OCTOBER 2026

DO THIS TODAY

Move key specs into a table on the page, not inside an image or a PDF.

CHECK 06 / 07

Price and stock that match everywhere.

The feed, the product page and the checkout must show the same price and the same stock. A mismatch gets ads disapproved and shoppers suspicious.

IN STOCK	IN STOCK	MISMATCH

DO THIS TODAY

Spot-check 10 deal products in your shopping feed against the live page.
